The problem

- Internet has shifted more towards visual implementation and information
- However not everyone can benefit from the modern customs
- Some are actually put into more of a disadvantage

The solution

- Plugin for Chrome
- Web pages easier to navigate for the visually impaired.
- Making the live chat accessible

Lebanon Hariri resignation a plot to stoke tension, says Iran

Mr Hariri, in a televised broadcast from Saudi Arabia, accused Iran of stirring "fear and concern" in Lebanon and threatening Lebanon's independence.

"Hariri's resignation comes with planning by [US President] Donald Trump and Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia," said Hassan Nasrallah, the leader of Lebanon's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei.

He said Mr Hariri had repeated "unrest and instability" in Lebanon and "had aligned himself with those who want it for the region", adding that he was "a tool in their hands".

Mr Hariri, whose family is close to Saudi Arabia, has been prime minister since December 2016, after previously serving between 2009 and 2011.

Mr Hariri's resignation opens up great uncertainty in Lebanon.

Iran says the surprise resignation of Lebanese Prime Minister Saad al-Hariri is part of a plot to stoke tensions in the region.

An adviser to Iran's supreme leader accused the US and Saudi Arabia of being behind the move.

He said he was stepping down because he feared for his life.

Mr Hariri's father, former Prime Minister Rafik al-Hariri, was assassinated in 2005.

Correspondents say his sudden departure plunges Lebanon into a new political crisis and raises fears that it may be at the forefront of the regional rivalry between Shia power Iran and Sunni stronghold Saudi Arabia.

Following the statement on Saturday, Iranian politicians lined up to denounce Mr Hariri's assertions.

Solution to make web pages more accessible for people with visual disabilities. The program will read the text on the web page and summarize it into a smaller paragraph of text. We decided to remove the top nav bar as this causes the user to tab several times before even getting to the main content. A small section will appear in the top right hand side of the screen containing links to the most important sections within the web page, this again removes the need for additional tabs through the page.
